LEAK FROM STOVE

City firemen said the fire was caused by a leak from a cooking stove, which exploded and ignited the rest of the boat.

The second, bigger blast was eaused by gasoline in the bilge that had leaked from the ves sel's fuel tank.

The boat, a 26-foot seven-ton commercial fishing vessel, is considered a total loss. It was almost 50 years old, and Wilson had lived on it for many years.

It burned only yards from the White Mist, whose Thursday morning fire is still being

Latest golf laugh making the rounds really happened, they say, at the recent Seniors' Pacific Northwest Golf Asso-ciation tournament at Oak Bay.

It's short and sweet but before one reaches the punch line, the reader must be made aware of certain facts:

It's a known fact that the seniors' event uses up caddles like no other tournament in B.C. The bag-toters numbered about 100 and it figures that some of the caddies had to be as green as the grass they walked.

Also, mention has to be made of the little green shack located between the 10th hole and seventh tee. That's where, during the course of the tournament, the clubhouse sends sandwiches and coffee for the benefit of players interested in midin mid-game snacks.

That's the background, this is the story:

One American campaigner, playing the 10th, sprayed his approach shot off line and into the gorse to the left of the green, near the shelter.

Player, opponent and caddy all set out to look for the ball. It was found, quickly, and the U.S. player stepped over to study his next shot. The caddy moved up and stood

The senior, having made up his mind about which club to use, turned around and said to the caddy: "Get me a sand

The eaddy darted off through the gorse. It seemed like an extra-long wait and the senior began to get impatient.

"Here you are, sir," said the caddy, returning on the double. "Did you also want a coffee to go with it?" he asked as he handed the senior a SANDWICH.

Recognition from eastern Canadians as a painter of children's portraits has come to Gladys V. Sawyer, wellknown Victoria artist.

She has been commissioned by several leading Toronto eitzens to do studies of their children. She plans to leave for the Ontario capital in October where she will set up a studio, returning to Victoria in December.

Mrs. Sawyer's rise as an artist of repute in B.C. is remarkable. She only started painting seriously four years ago. It wasn't long before her children's portraits in pastel were chosen for Vancouver Island jury How did she do it? She gives all credit to her teachers and husband for his encouragement, but friends say she won her laurels by sheer hard work.

Her paintings are now on exhibition at the Victoria Art Gallery. They are worth seeing.

THE CAMPAIGN BEGINS

KAMLOOPS—When I want time to think or work or plan, I take the train when I am going from Vancouver to my home in Kamloops. This time I wanted to think of the five weeks ahead, what it is that we are saying and doing in this election, and how we should bring this home to the people. I have to do this because for me, there are two campaigns—the one in the province, and my own in Kamloops.

I have staked a good deal on winning in Kamloops. I have wanted to run in Kamloops from the very beginning, even though some people said "You can't win. Run somewhere easy, somewhere safe." I thought I could win, so I announced that I would do it. Now this determination—to do it—has caught on in Kamloops. For the first time in the last few months, my friends and supporters in Kamloops now firmly believe that I will win. This is the most important breakthrough I could have the conviction that not only is it possible, but that it will be done.

The campaign in Kamloops has been called 'The battle of the giants' in the press. This is not the way I look at it. The man I am fighting in Kamloops is not the man who now holds the seat but the man he serves, and it must be on this basis that my fellow citizens in Kamloops constituency decide between Phil Gaglardi and myself. If I am to replace Mr. Bennett—and I know I can replace Mr. Bennett—then it will be on the basis of the larger issues, the larger questions, and not on a knock-down, drag-out, name-calling fight in Kamloops.

As I have been thinking and writing, what I want to say has now become clear. I must—in one clear speech—set out the ground of this campaign. I must give Mr. Bennett his due, but I must also show—by plain speaking and by honest policies—what he must be replaced by. Mr. Bennett will stake his ground on a $2 billion two-river policy. Mr. Strachan will stake his ground on a $50 million a year medical care program. The issues are broader. I will declare what we can do in this province in the years ahead, what we must do, and what we cannot do. You may read these things in your newspaper . . . Read them carefully. They form our manifesto.

Clear View From P.E.I

ONCE AGAIN MR. PEARSON has used a public occasion to meet head-on the problem of French Canadian separatism, or its latest manifestation—a proposal for a Canada composed of two largely autonomous parts held together by a weak and restricted central government. In Charlottetown, P.E.I., as he did in Quebec a few days ago, Mr. Pearson spoke in clear tones against any alteration of the constitution which would result in ultimate destruction of Canada as a

His words were spoken to a gathering at a Confederation memorial ceremony, but they were obviously addressed to those elements in Quebec and elsewhere who appear bound to set race or provincial rights before the good of Canada as a whole.

'I do not see how national unity can be maintained or Confederation survive if regional, provincial or racial feeling is carried so far as to reduce to weak abstraction our loy-alty and devotion to Canada itself,"

Mr. Pearson sees, as some apparently do not, that demarcation of Canada's population into two separate racial entities will not preserve either but result in the eventual destruction of both. Even a Canada united will have its work cut out to preserve a national and cultural presence beside its giant neighbor. Divided, the two parts would be soon overwhelmed.

The dream of coast-to-coast Confederation broken, the pressure of economics would outweigh the urge to nationhood. And with English-speaking Canada becoming more closely identified with the United States, probably to the point of absorption, the days of Quebec could not long survive as, on the insects. cultural beach-head on an English-speaking continent which had of lichens growing in the bark furrows no commitments to maintain its and in places some of the mosses have no commitments to maintain its heritages of language, religion or race. Those who cry for French Canadian "freedom from domination," therefore, are in effect urging abandonment of the guarantees that ensure their existence.

the other extreme, against any attempt to merge the two cultures Canada into an indistinguishable whole. Our strength lies in union, FROM WASHINGTON the unity of two parts, not in the assimilation of one by the other or the erasure of distinguishing features through faceless merger.

The fathers of Confederation, Mr. Pearson said at Charlottetown, would "urge us equally to reject those who wish completely to eliminate and those who wish us to exalt the geographical and historical 'hyphens' in our Canadianism."

This may seem only simple logic to some, an obvious utterance at a ceremonial cornerstone laying. But in some quarters today it will not be so viewed, and Mr. Pearson had the discipline to knows it. He spoke deliberately, knowing what political consequences his words might have for him, but was successfully knowing, too, that if Canada is to achieved.

This fundamental meeting of minds come through these critical times its leaders must say these things, believe them, and hold to them.

Regardless of the degree harm done, the situation in Utah indicates what could become an increasingly severe and widespread problem if nuclear tests were permitted to continue. Canada has already had its reports of Strontium 90 and radioactive iodine contamination resulting from nuclear bomb tests in the air thousands of miles Britain, too, has reported troublesome contamination at various times.

And more recently, Alaska Eskimos are said to be threatened by radioactive contamination of the reindeer and caribou herds on which they depend for food.

Obviously, continued testing will mean continued, and increasing, contamination problems and a spiralling threat to life and health. As ment that it was to be a demonstration of dress of legitimate grievances. They were agreed, too, that it would be most impressive and persuasive if the marchers refuse to be provoked differentiated the demonstration sharply from all other massive protests in otherparts of the world. As Mr. Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has pointed out to the Chinese Communists. the Washington marchers are not in rebellion against the government of the United States. Apart from the eccentric fringe, the overwhelming mass of the American Negroes are asking only for their lawful rights which are the normal prerogatives of non-colored American

The American Negro movement is not at all revolutionary as have been

FROM SINGAPORE

THE government and the Negro lead- the anti-colonial movements in Africa and Asia. The American Negroes are demanding the rights which have been legally theirs since just after the war between the states.

They are not trying to oust and re-place the white man, but to join him inside the existing American social order.

We must never forget, however, that if this thoroughly pon-revolutionary movement is repressed too long, if the redress of grievances is denied too long, could and probably would become clandestine, violent and ugly.

Looking back, it now seems clear enough that the position today would be quite different if the Southern States had in fact provided separate but equal educational opportunities for Negroes and whites. The compelling reason for the reversal by the Supreme Court of the old rule was that for 60 years the separated schools have been grossly unequal. There have been some exceptions. But by and large the schools for Negroes have been very bad.

Those who now deplore the com-plications of more than token integration in the Southern schools should ask themselves what would have happened if the public schools, though separate, had for the past 60 years really been

All this illustrates the rule that the longer you put off the redress of real grievances, the harder become the remedies. The grievances of the American Negroes are coming in two successive and overlapping waves. The first wave is the unfinished business of abolishing what Mr. Justice Harlan called in 1883 "the badges of slavery and servitude." These badges consist of public discrimination on the basis of race.

The Supreme Court decision in the school cases, the civil rights measures against distranchisement, the public accommodations measures are part of the unfinished business of making American citizens out of chattel slaves.

The succeeding wave of grievances is economic and has to do primarily with the inferior jobs and the inferior housing to which most Negroes are condemned. In considerable measure, though no one can say exactly how much, this kind of inferiority is due to the fact that the Negro is poorly educated and poorly trained and that, for a hundred years since his ancestors were emancipated, he has still had to wear the badges of their servitude.

But it is even more important to realize that the economic grievances of the Negroes are due preponderantly to the fact that they are so poor. They are poor, not only because they are Negroes, but bécause the American economy is operating well below full capacity and full employment.

In fact, there are more poor and unemployed whites than there are Negroes; but relative to their numbers, the Negroes have a greater percentage of unemployed. Because of their race, the Negroes tend to be the last to be hired and the first to be fired. But if there were not a chronic surplus of labor, they would have much better

The economic grievances of the American Negroes cannot be redressed without a series of measures which will make buoyant our sluggish economy, The candid truth here is that this is not likely to happen soon. For measures are required to stimulate our economy which are distrusted and opposed in Congress and, it would seem, in the country as well.

It is probable, therefore, that while the Negroes will prevail in regard to the first wave of their grievances, the removal of the badges of slavery, no substantial improvement of their general economic situation is likely to come soon. For this will require the conquest of dire poverty, and the country is not now ready for such an undertaking.

Meanwhile, Japanese bar owners at Misawa have started to practice segregation against colored American troops. The Negroes have responded with peaceful "sit-ins," but it is understood that a few days ago 100 police were alerted for an expected demonstration which was only cancelled after the American base commander had urged the owners of the bars not to discriminate against Negroes.

Labor Minister A. J. MacEachen and his department are studying the causes of unemployment. One of the ideas put forth is tax incentives to industry opening up in underdeveloped areas.

That gives some idea of the main useums inside Copenhagen itself, and takes no account of specialized institu-tions like the little Resistance Museum which tells the story of Denmark's under-ground struggle during the German occupation. Outside Copenhagen, some 15 miles north, near the royal deer park with its vast herds of bleating deer (I had never heard them making this strange noise before-like a distant football crowd cheering the referee for his courage in awarding a penalty against the home team), are a large aquarium, an openair museum-village illustrating the Dan-ish rural way of life in bygone days, and a large private collection of Impressionist paintings in a rich man's mansion open to the public two or three days a week.

Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA-When the provincial premiers met in Halifax on Aug. 5, newsman Ed Murphy was there with his ubiquitous tape recorder. Following is a transcription of part of the press conference held by Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia:

Q. Mr. Premier, do you foresee a provin cial election this year in British Columbia?

Mr. B: Certainly not. I have said on many occasions—made it very crystal clear—that the Social Credit government in British Columbia is not a government that tries to seek party advantages just because we have great policies going. What we seek is to get things done and to get more development, and we see no election this year and perhaps no election in 1964.

Q. This looks like 65, does it. Mr. Bennett? Mr. B: Well, 65 would be a better guess than 64.

Thank you very much, sir. * *

On Aug. 22 Premier Bennett announced dissolution of the B.C. Legislature for a general election to be held Sept. 30. One of the reasons he gave was a desire to get a new mandate before the federal-provincial conference to be held in Ottawa in November.

That conference could scarcely be said to have taken Mr. Bennett by surprise, for it was proposed by Prime Minister Pearson last spring, and it was a main topic of conversa tion among the provincial premiers duringtheir meeting in Halifax.

Cynics suggest that Mr. Bennett's mind was changed by a sudden realization that he might be able to turn the B.C. Electric fiasco into an election asset. On July 29 Chief Justice Sherwood Lett of the B.C. Supreme Court had handed down a judgment which ruled that the B.C. government's expropriation of the B.C. Electric was ultra vires and without

But this politico-legal disaster might be interpreted as a denial by the judiciary of the will of the people—giving it new possi-bilities as a Socred election issue.

This B.C. election, only three years after the last one, illustrates a propensity in provincial politics that is contributing to the voters' weariness of political campaigns. Four years used to be the normal term of a majority government, with five years not unusual. Now provincial premiers are calling elections in three years, or even two, with no more urgent reason than convenience or political expediency.

Bennett has now gone on two occasions after only three years, Premier Manning of Alberta once, Premier Roblin of Manitoba once, Premier Shaw of P.E.I. once, Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick once, and Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland twice. But the quickie champ of them all is Premier Lesage of Quebec: an election in 1960, and another in 1962, all for no particular reason that anyone could fathom.

It's no wonder that the voters are said to. fed up with elections. This at least is having a salutary effect on the federal parties, discouraging the Grits from running to the people in search of a majority, and discouraging the Tories, Socreds and NDP from forcing an election.

But the message hasn't reached the provincial bosses, and perhaps the best way to correct the situation is by law. Already governments are limited to five-year terms. It might be a good idea to amend this law and make four years the minimum term for majority governments, unless a government were defeated earlier in the House.

THE SCOREBOARD Harry Grayson

NEW YORK (NEA) - While most baseball people oppose indiscriminate moving of franchises on the ground that it makes gypsies out of the clubs, talk persists that two more may hit the road.

At the December meetings, Charles O. Finley, the controversial Kansas City owner, expects permission to switch the Athletics for the second time in nine years. This time the destination would be Oakland, Calif. Finley, the Gary, Ind., insurance typhoon-tycoon, indicated that he wanted to get out of Karsas City shortly after he obtained the A's three years ago. He reportedly flirted with Dallas-Fort Worth.

The principal reason why the American League might approve the transfer to Oakland is that it is badly in need. of a second club to go with the Los Angeles Angels in Cali-fornia. Jet fare to the Pacific Coast for one stop is too expensive. A schedule including Oakland has already been worked out.

"I think I could have gotten permission at the All-Star-Game meeting," Finley is quoted as saying.

There is chatter about the Cleveland Club shuffling

Louis R. Perini, baseball's original moving man, doesn't e anything wrong with transplanting clubs. Perini, the nternational contractor who moved the Braves from Boston to Milwaukee 10 years ago, retained 10 per cent last Nober when he sold the outfit to a northern Illinois group.

Toronto Possible Big-League City

Perini had just flown in from a Braves' directors' meetig in Milwaukee when I bumped into him at the Newark liport. He was en route to Colombia, where his firm is oing heavy construction work. He commented on the poor ttendance in Sudsville, talked glowingly of Atlanta and foronto as prospective big league cities.

"The decision to move from Milwaukee would be up to the new owners," said Perini, "but I don't know what an wner can do when the public loses interest, which seems be the case in Milwaukee as it was in Boston before it. nder those circumstances I would say that it is construcre to move. I also have to say that things were great in ilwaukee while it lasted.

Milwaukee attendance last season was off nearly 1,500,-000 from the Braves' peak year—2,215,404 in 1957, but what the moving men overlook is that last season was the first time it dipped below 1,000,000. This after averaging more than 1,500,000 for 10 years and exceeding 2,000,000 four

It's Easier to Move Than to Win

Milwaukee, like Cleveland, has demonstrated that It Is a good baseball city. So has Kansas City, as a matter of fact, having drawn 1,400,000 the year the A's went west from Philadelphia. Big league baseball simply hasn't been given a fair chance in Kansas City, where it is the only game in town. The trick in the packing center, as it is in Milwaukee and Cleveland, is to win back the paying guests.

Horace Stonenam said the fans wouldn't go to the Polo Grounds to see the Giants, so he moved Willie Mays and Company to San Francisco. Well, the buffs go to Harlem to see the lowly New York Mets, whose attendance for the first 45 playing dates this season was 753,003.

But there will be talk of franchise shifts with every serious attendance drop. It's easier to move, you see, than it is to win.

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Noel Pumfrey's putter originally belonged to a young lady who Friday suggested she "should get it back and bury it where nobody can find it." 10 Bictoria Baily Times SAT, AUG. 31, 1963

Noel doesn't blame the weapon, but it must be conceded that putting provided the big difference Friday as the 18-year-old Victoria University student lost the Canadian junior golf championship to Wayne Vollmer, Vancouver.

Vollmer, making the best of some costly misses on the greens by Pumfrey, scored a one-up victory in their 36-down in six and Pumfrey and the 32nd and 36th holes. There were others, too, but they won't be discussed quite as much as the "big two."

Three down playing the 32nd, Pumfrey appeared headed for a win after Vollmer messed up his first three shots on the par five hole. Vollmer eventually was one-up victory in their 36-down in six and Pumfrey

SOVIET PUCK BOSSES DROP VETERAN STARS

MOSCOW (UPI) - Russia's ice hockey bosses, already preparing for the 1964 winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, have swept three veteran aces from their world championship squad and scheduled a tough training program.

Members of the squad are gathered here for a brief opening training session under coaches Arkady Chernyshov and Anatoli Tarasov, masterminds of Russia's world title win in Stockholm last March.

Chernyshov said three of his most experienced players have been sidelined temporarily because of "loss of form." They are defencemen Eduard Ivanov and Nikolai Sologubov and forward Viktor Yakushev.

"We are determined to retain our world and European titles and add to them the gold medal of Olympic champions," Chernyshov said.

DUNCAN—An appeal will be launched against a magistrate's decision rejecting an application to have a Duncan juvenile, charged with manslaughter, tried in adult court. The appeal will be heard in Supreme Court in Victoria. The application to have the case heard by a higher court was made by Crown prosecutor David Williams last Monday. It was rejected by Magistrate Colin Anderson. The manslaughter charge arose from an Aug. 8 incident in which a 14-year-old boy, Hugh George Nesbitt, died near his home after an altercation with some other youths.

Mrs. H. Klassen will be waving to three children next Tuesday morning, all starting for a new term at Oaklands School. Five-year-old Louise will be in the kindergarten class; Melvin, 11, in Grade 7 and nine-year-old Neil in Grade 4. Mr. and Mrs. Klassen and their children live at 1464 Stroud Street. Mrs. Klassen speaks with pride of the school her children attend. "It is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year," she tells you.

DISTINGUISHED TAILORING

J. GROSSO

IN JULY 1782, the first Grosso tailor completed his apprenticeship and opened a little shop in his home village of St. Massimo, about 70 miles from Rome, Italy.

Rome, Italy.

SINCE THAT DAY, nine generations of the Grossofamily have engaged in fine tailoring, with traditions, skills, and even tools, handed down from father to son.

ON THURSDAY, September 5, 1963, the ninth generation Joseph Grosso will open a shop in Victoria, at 1157 Newport Avenue.

MR. GROSSO has spent all his adult life in per-fecting the skills which have made his family noted. He has lived and worked six years in Canada, four in Victoria, learning Canadian fashions, and, more particularly, the preferences of Victorians.

THE HOUSE OF GROSSO will deal in Victoria, as it has for nearly 200 years in Italy, with quality—quality in both materials and workmanship—creating garments for men and women with consumate skill and imagination.

In undertaking the great adventure of my own business in Victoria,

I would like to acknowl-the kindness and encourage-ment of many friends and customers. Their satisfaction with my work now and in the future will be the founda-tion stone of what success I may achieve.

Take Sebastian Cabot, for instance, the well-known TV and movie actor who this year made Sidney his summer home... he's been commuting between here and Hollywood all summer for his TV show "Stump the Stars"... Well, early in the game Mr. Cabot placed all his travel arrangements in the capable hands of Paulin's... so all he's ever had to do is step on and off a plane... We understand he is delighted with have to be famous, or a movie star, for Paulin's to give you of their best... When is a girl? . . .

When we were very young and self-conscious . . . our first sign of burgeoning curves was cause for acute embarrassment . . no one ever thought of buying us a bra . . . we flattened ourselves down as best we could . Today's teen-agers have a much easier time of it because modern mothers are better informed about their daughters' needs . . They know that the minute a girl starts looking like a girl . . when her figure first begins to look more rounded . It's time to take her in to be fitted for a bra . . And you'll notice we mentioned having her fifted because correct fit is extremely important at a tender age when still-forming tissue, can be damaged by strain . . Mae Meighen's are professional corsetieres who excel at this sort of thing . They have a wide selection of bras especially designed for the young figure . and they particularly recommend those by Gothic which are sturdy, take to countless washings . . and inexpensive, ranging in price from $1$ to $2.50 . . # No Escape Ever From Tipping Waiters and cab drivers thrive on it. Tourists are perplexed by it. But, in our modern society there ap-pears to be no escape from the problem.

Tipping is as solidly entrenched as roast beer and Yorkshire pudding.

Some blame the Good Sa-maritan of Biblical fame for starting the practice. Others claim it originated in an 18th century English coffee house where it was common for customers to drop a few coins into a box to ensure speedy service. But, whatever its beginnings, tipping for many has developed into a vacation nightmare. They haven't a clue who should be tipped

OREGON'S SOUTHERN COAST is a favorite with hikers, campers and picnickers. Harris State Beach Park, north of Brookings, offers fun for all three within its boundaries with sandy beaches, tent and trailer camping, high cliffs, picnic tables and scenic trails. Here a family views the ocean from a flower-covered headland. And besides all this, the coast waters are teeming with fish.

Fisherman Fireman In 'Fair' Condition

By LESLIE MILLIN

An elderly fisherman and a city fireman are in hospital after two gasoline ex-plosions ripped and sunk a troller at Fishermen's Wharf this morning.

City police have called in a skindiver to help recover the man's life savings, believed to have gone down with the If II. Jack Wilson, about 78, was blown through the deck of the vessel by the first explosion about 9.45 a.m. He is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with third-degree burns to his head, arms

Two city firemen were blown into the water by a second explosion, half an hour later, one of them—Stan Gow—suffering burns and shock.

LEAK FROM STOVE

City firemen said the fire was caused by a leak from a cooking stove, which exploded and ignited the rest of the boat.

The second, bigger blast was caused by gasoline in the bilge that had leaked from the vessel's fuel tank. The boat, a 26-foot seven-ton commercial fishing vessel, is considered a total loss. It was almost 50 years old, and Wilson had lived on it for many years.

It burned only yards from the White Mist, whose Thurs-day morning fire is still being investigated.

Bert Myers, a husky young seaman, heard the first blast and pulled Wilson off the deck of the burning boat. He told The Times this morning that he had warned

Both city police wagons were fied up in Saanich taking prisoners to the city police court 15 minutes before a wagon could get through heavy traffic to take Wilson to hospital.

Trouble began on Daven-try dust cart No. 17 when Tim Pearson, 53, challenged Harry Batger's right to occupy No. 4. Fists flew and official William Pryor arrived to ad-

Latest golf laugh making the rounds really happened, they say, at the recent Seniors' Pacific Northwest Golf Asso-ciation tournament at Oak Bay. It's short and sweet but before one reaches the punch line, the reader must be made aware of certain facts:

It's a known fact that the seniors' event uses up caddles like no other tournament in B.C. The bag-toters numbered about 100 and it figures that some of the caddies had to be as green as the grass they walked.

Also, mention has to be made of the little green shack located between the 10th hole and seventh tee. That's where, during the course of the tournament, the clubhouse sends sandwiches and coffee for the benefit of players interested in mid-game snacks.

That's the background, this is the story:

One American campaigner, playing the 10th, sprayed his approach shot off line and into the gorse to the left of the green, near the shelter.

Player, opponent and caddy all set out to look for the ball. It was found, quickly, and the U.S. player stepped over to study his next shot. The caddy moved up and stood

The senior, having made up his mind about which club to use, turned around and said to the caddy: "Get me a sand wedge."

The caddy darted off through the gorse. It seemed like an extra-long wait and the senior began to get impatient. "Here you are, sir," said the caddy, returning on the double. "Did you also want a coffee to go with it?" he asked as he handed the senior a SANDWICH, * * *

Recognition from eastern Canadians as a painter of children's portraits has come to Gladys V. Sawyer, well-Victoria artist.

She has been commissioned by several leading Toronto citizens to do studies of their children. She plans to leave for the Ontario capital in October where she will set up a studio, returning to Victoria in December.

Mrs. Sawyer's rise as an artist of repute in B.C. is remarkable. She only started painting seriously four years ago. It wasn't long before her children's portraits in p Tel were chosen for Vancouver Island jury

How did she do it? She gives all credit to her teachers and husband for his encouragement, but friends say she won her laurels by sheer hard work.

Her paintings are now on exhibition at the Victoria Art Gallery. They are worth seeing.

From Hamilton, Ont., Anglican church student Harry Dawson writes for back numbers of The Times describing his ministry at St. Peter's Church, Hudson Hope, B.C. this Until recently Harry shared the little timbered church with Malcolm Profitt, a United Church student. Every Sunday they held an Anglican service in the morning and a United Church service in the evening.

This co-operative effort was described by Times staffer Norman Cribbens in a series of articles on the Peace River country. But Harry did not hear of them until he returned to his home at 1845 Barton Street, Hamilton.

"In these perilous times," he writes, "it is most im-

Victoria, where there are many ex-Lon-In Vancouver, Sir Ralph was asked if his father was Dick Whittington, the famous Lord Mayor of London who carried a cat on his shoulder.

"Dick Whittington did really live;" Sir Ralph said. "He was Lord Mayor around 1388 A.D. but we cannot verify all the leg-ends about him."

The story is that Dick, a very poor boy, was leaving London in despair after being beaten and staryed when he heard the Bow Bells ring out the words: "Turn again, Dick Whittington, Lord Mayor of London Town!

Office Not Hereditary

In a talk to the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs of Victoria Friday afternoon, the Lord Mayor showed that his office is from hereditary. He has to be nominated by the select court of aldermen of the city of London, and it may be 15 years after that before he takes office even if he makes the grade, and the qualifications are high.

The office carries no salary, but is con

The other day I dressed with more than usual care and dropped in on Tom Price, who sells clothes to men young, middling and over the hill. As might be expected, Mr. Price keeps a finger firmly on the pulse of the male style world.

a long weekend distant, was to find out what new departures in teen-age raiment we parents must steel ourselves against. This chip-on-padded shoulder attitude, Mr. Price accepted as normal, but mistaken. In fact, the impression I came away with is that, sartorially speaking, junior could give lesson to dear . . . but slightly un-kempt . . . old dad.

Before we proceed, though, here are some general obser-ations to ponder.

Of Canada's average $4,500 family income spread among 3.32 persons, about 9 per cent goes annually for clothes. Of this, the wife and one child, boy or girl, account for $270, leaving father to struggle along on

His next new suit, which will gobble a major portion of his allotment, may well be a double-breaster. Clothes styles go in cycles, each of about 20 years' duration. If history repeats itself, the single-breasted jacket is due for a falling-off in popular-

We westerners run to longer legs and (sorry, gents!) broader beams than our cousins east of the Manitobaborder. In Montreal, the standard inside seam length for men's unfinished pants is 371/2 inches. Out here, where fish, trees and men grow bigger, that's too short for a proper Fabrics are also lighter than they used to be, for which we can blame or credit central heating and our national aversion to walking when we can ride in a closed car. Even in Victoria, Harris tweed is yielding to less rugged fabrics, and the bullet-proof winter suit faces virtual extinction.

Getting back to the young unch, Mr. Price insists that today's juvenile is a shrewder and more style-conscious clothes buyer than his old man was at a comparable age.

In this era of wider opportunity, he has more money to spend; and oftener than otherwise, he's earned all or most of his clothes funds at a parttime job. His parents, too, are more permissive. They usually tag along on his first adolescent buying expedition, but the chances are, he'll shop alone thereafter. Significantly, style-consciousness in a boy awakens at the approximate time he discovers that girls have a place in the scheme of things.

One of my concerns, with fall school opening

His tastes mature through his growing-up years, but the pattern shows no startling change until he's around 25.

Then, married and perhaps familied, he buys for utility and durability, a condition which lasts until he's deep in his forties. With the kids selfsupporting or mostly so and his earning power at its peak, the empty hangers on his side clothes closet then begin to fill. * * *

At this point in the discussion, a young man of my acquaintance stopped by to try on a pair of cords. Half an earlier, I'd have suggested he also pick up a shoehorn; but schooled by Tom Price, I nodded approval.

"Do the kids ever buy suspenders?" I asked, as we watched young mister snakehips stride out to the car that has replaced his motor-cycle, "No." said Mr. Price. "They don't make them long enough. By the way, did I tell you we now carry stretch pants for boys? They're selling very well."

Machine - washable cotton pants, high-styled sport shirts with pinned collars and bulky cardigan sweaters sans stripes are likely to be standard junior high and high school uniform this Dress-up outfits remain Ivy League, although they aren't sold under that designation. The teen agers, for reasons that remain obscure to their elders, dislike that term for the narrowcut, natural shoulder suit.

I had a last question for Mr. Price. "Just for a gimmick," I suggested, "suppose you tell me how I rate style-wise." The maestro measured me with a glance, then took a long breath. "Well." he began, "your suit is obviously—let's say— not new. Your lapels are wider than the style demands, and that also goes for the trousers. Now, about your tie. The material is too rough for the suit. And you shouldn't jam your glasses in the breast pocket, which

B.C. FORESTERS—THAT'S WHO!

Who Stole Hot Summer

By FRANK RUTTER

Want to blame somebody for the rain that spoiled your holiday? Blame the B.C. government forest service.

The foresters pray for bad weather all summer long.

Just look at what they say this week in their report on the forest fire situation: "Favorable damp weather conditions during July and August months of high fire occurrence, have prevented any major forest fires from eloping."

"It is unlikely that major outbreaks will occur before the end of the fire season, they go on.

That's just to warn you not to take your holidays now, because they have ordered rain next week. To be on the safe side, to ensure that you don't enjoy the few pleasant days we have had this week, they ad-"Forest protection offi-cers earnestly hope that everyone will be most careful driving on highways and doubly alert to the dangers of fire in the woods.

"The present weather pattern is expected to cause a slight increase in the fire hazard."

This really means: don't enjoy a smoke and whatever you do this weekend stay the heck out of our beautiful

They particularly dislike smokers, campers, and children, who they say caused eight fires on Lower Vancouver Island this week.

But the fire season is near-This year it has cost $349,-400 for 2,039 fires. When the fall rams come wing, le Ralliement des Creditistes.

Mr. Thompson suggested Friday that Mr. Caouette quit the party, saying he could no longer tolerate his "irresponsible statements" about separatism of personal criticism of himself and other Social Crediters.

Mr. Caouette replied he could have stopped Mr. Thompson from being elected party leader at the 1961 convention and accused him of "Grying every method to split the Quebec delegation."

GRANBY, Que. (CP)-Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, said Friday night he would campaign in British Columbia during the coping provincial elections if asked.

"However, I do not think they will need me," he said in a telephone interview on the eve of a convention of le Ralliement des Creditistes, the Quebec wing of the Social Credit party.

He praised Premier W. A. C. Bennett's administration, saying it was the best in B.C.'s history.

Premier Bennett was unavailable for comment today. He supported Mr. Caouette for the national leadership of the party against present leader Robert Thompson two years ago, and has never publicly repudiated his support.
